>Rias Gremory was irritated, angry, and exhausted.

_ 'There has to be something.' _

In the past three years, the heiress of the Gremory Family had observed the people of Kuoh Town, a small but modern town in Japan. She watched the farmers take in harvest in the outskirts, salarymen stress over their papers in the subways and busses, students going from school to cram school, and housewives shop in the malls and boutiques in droves. In three years, she had not seen a single person without fault, without flaw. Farmers lie about their products, salarymen can be bribed, students cheat at school, and housewives cheat on their husbands. Rias tried not to generalize; not every person have the same fault, but ultimately, they all had one, usually more.

All except one person, Uzumaki Naruto.

Rias had first met Naruto during her first year at Kuoh Academy, the largest and most prestigious high school in Kuoh City. As the school was personally funded by the Gremory Family, Rias felt that it was her responsibility to watch over the student body. Back then, Naruto was just another person she would smile at and greet upon passing "he had yet to become interesting. As one after another proved to Rias that humans were no better than anything else, Naruto refused to budge.

The young man was polite and courteous, but Rias was determined that it was only an act. As time went on, Rias started to pay him extra attention. She sat behind him in class, and found that he never once cheated on his work, never once lazed in his work ethic, never once bothered anyone else. Not only that, but he never once refused to help others. Boys and girls would line up before him, asking, sometimes begging for his answers, or even to copy his work. He would then teach them the material himself, not once giving in to his peers' temptations.

Soon, he became the only person in the entire school that Rias could not figure out. Against her own good judgement, Rias found herself following her classmate after school. Even when duties called, she sent her familiar to trail behind him. She was becoming more determined to discover his true persona by the day. Her political training reminded Rias to find out more about Naruto's personal life, and she compiled her data. She found that Naruto lived alone, apparently orphaned since birth. He had left his foster home the day he turned fourteen and moved into a small apartment close to the school. He shopped for himself, cooked for himself, and cleaned after himself. Every day, he'd wake in the morning, make himself a large breakfast and a small lunch for school, and leave for school in the cleanest and meticulous school uniform. He was popular in school for his generosity and kindness, so many people would approach him. He'd mingle among classmates and teachers, adored by all. After school, he'd head home, forgoing cram school because of his flawless grades. After some brief homework, he'd sleep fully onto the next morning.

This pattern went on for an entire year until Rias finally found an anomaly.

Just after the end of their junior year, Naruto spent a lot of money on an order online. Rias had her reclusive computer genius, Gasper hack into his computer and figured out all his orders. It was highly unusual. Naruto had apparently forged the company ID of the local pharmacy and ordered a near truck-load of pharmaceuticals to his personal address. Rias had thought she'd hit the jackpot. Naruto was using his intellect in chemistry to make some sort of addicting drug to sell to his many friends in school. Rias had her phone on the ready as she watched Naruto sort through his order, but once again, she was surprised.

'Oh, come on!'

Somehow, Naruto had found that a large group of homeless people lived at the very edge of the city. There were people who were simply down in the dumps and had rotten luck, but there were also some dangerous personalities there. Many were drug addicts that would do anything for another fix, or the cash that would give them another fix. There were convicts, thieves, even pimps. But somehow, Naruto acted just as he would to his friends with these people, and oddly enough, they felt relaxed and comfortable around him.

So for the entire summer, instead of partying with his friends at the beach or going on dates with the many girls who found him cute and sexy, Naruto spent his sunny days giving check-ups to the homeless, and prescribing medicine to most of them. Day after day, he would be there at first light. He had a few homeless men help him stash his medication inside a storage unit, and not once had people tried to steal from him. For some ungodly reason that remained a mystery to Rias, everyone around Naruto found it easy to trust and believe in him, and soon, he saved every person that needed his help. He was amazing at diagnostics. Rias had never once seen him discern something wrong " it was as if his eyes could see into his patients' bodies.

This went on for another six months, and Rias kept watching him day after day. But she could no longer handle it, and finally decided to talk to him.

"Good morning, Naruto-san." The Gremory Heiress could see the genuine surprise in her subject's eyes, but merely continued to smile. It was still early in the morning, and Naruto was making his way to school. The street was mostly empty, with stores just opening for business, giving Rias a nice opportunity to gather some information in peace, "How are you today?"

"Very good, Rias-san. Thank you for asking."

Rias knew she needed to speak more, "You know, we've been acquaintances for a long time now, and I want to know more about you. Would you mind if we walk to school together this morning? I would like to talk to you."

"Of course, Rias-san. It would be pleasure."

Now, Rias had certain expectations. Having grown up as a princess in the Underworld she had grown accustomed to fake smiles and false courtesy, but she found none with Naruto. And after a few years in the human world with a devil's body, she had grown sensitive to when men would ogle her, when their eyes would sneak a peek to her breasts, but Naruto never did.

That just made Rias want to know Naruto even more.

So for the remaining months of the year, Rias spend nearly every morning walking to school with Naruto, deepening their conversations with each passing day. Courteous smiles changed to affectionate grins; handshakes changed to small hugs, and small talk became personal chats. Rias and found out that Naruto's mother had died on the birthing bed, and he had never met his father. He did not leave his foster home because of his dislike of them, but he wanted to become more independent " in fact, he still had frequent letter communication with his foster parents. It took a few months, but Naruto finally told Rias of his small, personal, and highly illegal clinic at the edge of town, and his regular clients, the homeless population. It took another month, but Naruto brought Rias to his clinic and she acted as his nurse for the entire day. Once a month turned into once a week, then every other day, then every day. By the end of their second year, the people who would visit the clinic had grown accustomed to seeing her, and would feel just as comfortable with her as they would be with Naruto.

Rias had grown close to Naruto, despite still watching his every move. But soon she found that she had become desperate in discovering something bad of Naruto, needing to see if he was really the man she had grown to believe in. She started to believe that he truly had a heart of gold, and nothing was fake. So far, he had not disappointed her.

She had fallen into his trap, like every other person around him. Unknowingly and almost ominously, Naruto had wormed his way into his life, and the worst part was that she had initiated everything.

Rias Gremory was irritated, angry, and exhausted.

'Why is he so irresistible?'

>Uzumaki Naruto was horrified.

'You can do this!'

His heart was pounding in his chest and there was a lump in his throat. His stomach was doing backflips and his hands couldn't stop shaking. He had already drunk three glasses of ice cold water and fanned himself for the past ten minutes, but he couldn't stop sweating. He had never been so nervous; even when he had to make life-changing decisions at his clinic, he didn't feel so troubled. It goes to prove just how inexperienced he was with such a thing.

"Good morning, Naruto!" Rias had abandoned the use of any formal honorifics months ago. "Ready for today's test."

As per usual, Rias appeared on the crossroad that led to their school. Her luscious red hair fell onto her back like a river of rubies, glistening in the morning sunlight. There was a soft twinkle in her dark green eyes as she smiled at him with that beautiful little smirk that revealed her dimples.

Naruto felt his heart pound against his chest at her melodic voice. "G-Good morning, Rias-chan."

Rias raised a brow, "Are you feeling alright?"

Naruto needed to get everything off his chest as soon as possible, so he immediately stood tall. "Rias-chanâ€¦I'm wondering," he trailed off as his eyes shifted from her eyes to the ground, "Wonderingâ€¦wondering if you would be interested."

The girl stepped closer, "Interested in what?"

"Interested in," he felt out of breath as he forced out the rest, "Interested in going on a date with me."

Rias' eyes widened as she failed to give a response, but her desire was starting to burn in her heart.

Naruto took a deep breath and gathered his courage again, "Will you go on a date with me?"

He truly had no idea what to expect and couldn't remotely imagine how Rias would react. He had tried to play out the situation in his mind, but he couldn't begin to comprehend Rias' thoughts. In the end, there were only two possible answers, yes, or no. But for the life of him, there was no way he could have possibly predicted such a reaction.

It was like a dam had been tore open and everything came pouring out.

Rias suddenly pushed Naruto against the nearest wall and pressed her lips against his. She pressed herself against his chest and wrapped her arms around his neck, pulling him into the deepest kiss possible. Her tongue forced its way into his mouth and wrestled his tongue into submission, leaving him weak in the knees. He nearly fell to the ground, but didn't need to as Rias pushed him down onto the ground. She straddled his hips and continued to ravage his mouth, not stopping for another full minute.

When she pulled away, both were short of breath, but she couldn't help but moan. "You are a good man, Naruto." Rias hungrily kissed him again before pulling away while sucking his lower lip, "A good person. You don't do anything wrong; you have strong morals; you help anyone who needs you. You're just the perfect example of a perfect human being." She kissed him again and barely pulled away, leaving her lips to tickle his. "It makes me want to corrupt you."

"W-What?" Naruto's mind was blank, and had been ever since Rias took control.

"You're too good a person. I don't know why, but it makes you so irresistible." Rias rested her entire body onto Naruto's, disregarding the fact that they were in public. "I want to see your desires, your needs. No matter how much I reason to myself, how much I try to resist, it doesn't matter. You are driving me insane, Naruto. There is just something about you that makes every cell in my body call out to you, makes my entire being want you."

"R-Rias!"

"I'm going to make you mine, Naruto!"

This has been in my mind for a long time now. The Second Son of God was my first DXD idea, and this is the official rewrite of it. Since it was one of my earlier works, it is not up to the standard of my current stories. So just like Thunderous Music, I will be rewriting it.

There are some obvious changes in this, most specifically Rias' desire for Naruto that reflects the Devil's desire to corrupt the son of God. This is the prologue, so the next few chapters will explain much more, so please keep an eye out.

Chapter 2: What Do You Mean It's Not Sinful?!

>Like most others his age, Naruto had wondered about the girls in his life. After all, enrolling in a high school where the girls overwhelmingly outnumbered the boys did little to stop his imagination. Many of his fellow classmates had discussed in length the wonder and mystery that was the fairer sex. Naruto didn't blame them at all; he had been quite attentive in those discussions. They were all going through puberty and their hormones were flying about â€" Naruto could literally see them. It was only normal that they start thinking and imagining about girls, especially ones as beautiful as their schoolmates.

More than once had Naruto wondered about his future girlfriend â€" about her personality, appearance and how much he'd love her. He'd think about the things he'd say to make her fall for him, the places he'd show to her to share some moments, about the times he'd lean in and kiss her. There were several times when Naruto fell to only second place in the school was because of his thoughts on girls â€" it goes to show how much it bothered him.

But even in his wildest imagination, Naruto would have never imagined this.

"R-Rias," he managed to mutter between breathes and kisses.

The girl was far stronger than he expected. He saw for the first time that Rias' muscles were much more compact than his own, and despite their small size, they were able to exert quite a lot of power. Her slender and womanly figure was overpowering his manly stature; it was quite shocking for a healthy young man of six feet to be pressed down by a woman nearly half a head shorter.

Rias sucked on his lower lip as she pulled away slightly, "It is rude to not kiss back, you know?"

"I'm s-sorry," he instinctively replied, "But I have no idea what I'm doing." _'Or what you're doing'_, he thought inwardly as the girl kept him on the ground. "This is my first kiss."

Rias licked his lips and smiled at his jolt, "This is my first kiss as well." She kissed him hard and strong before continuing, "So you have no excuse." Her half-lidded eyes were enchanting Naruto; she looked so sexy that he felt weak. "It isn't hard. I'll lead." She leaned in close and let their lips touch, "Just move your lips against mine, like this." The way she spoke against his lips made him moan, and he found himself slowly moving against her lips, pressing into the kiss. "That's it~"

Rias' tongue returned with a vengeance. She parted his lips and dove in, finding his tongue to be easy prey. Naruto moaned as Rias' smooth and fleshy tongue brushed and slid against his own, exploring every part of his mouth. It was so wet and warm. He tasted how sweet she was. For the first time in his life, his mind was shutting down and had become completely useless. He was completely at her whim, responding onto to stimuli and her commands.

"You have no idea how long I've wanted to do this, Naruto." Rias' face was flushed as she rubbed herself against Naruto, moaning as he groaned beneath her. "I've dreamt of seeing you like this, moaning and groaning under me, drowning in pleasure and desire." Rias giggled as she licked his lips again, tasting him again and again. "It makes me so excited~"

The cute and innocent Rias in his mind was shattered, and replaced by the new seductive, wanton, sexy woman. He couldn't have imagined the girl he'd been friends with for the past year could become so passionate, so wild. Her voice was so melodic and full of emotion, it made his entire body shiver.

"I'm always watching you, Naruto." Rias admitted as she nibbled on his lips, "Wondering when you'd slip up."

"What do you mean," he managed to whisper back, his lips tingling.

"I have a keen eye, you know." Rias smirked as gave his lower lip a small tug, "I see people and discover them. I see their wants, their desires, and the things they'd do to get those things. Everyone is imperfect, full of flaws. No matter how hard they try to deny it, or how many ways they try to hide it, I can always see. I see through everyone I meet, so matter who or what they are. Everyone except for you."

"R-Rias," he tried to interrupt, but her lips quickly silenced him.

Rias moaned into the kiss, "Listen to me, my handsome Naruto." He instantaneously relented. "I watched you for two years, and two years you were perfect. You don't cheat in school, you don't lie to anyone, you are kind and polite to everyone you know or meet. Even in the summer, you don't go on dates or fool around with any girls. You actually are a little like Robin Hood and you steal medicine for the poor and homeless. You're a hero to all of them." Rias shivered as she ran her hands under his shirt and felt his muscled chest, "You're even handsome and sexy. I didn't understand how someone can be so perfect, and it was so annoying and frustrating."

"I-I'm not perfect."

"I know you're not, now." Rias kissed him again and whispered haughtily against his lips, "I've finally found your flaw." She looked straight into his eyes and said, "You're have lust. You desire the warmth of a woman. You get aroused at the sight of them, the touch of them, or maybe even the scent of them of me." Rias gently brought Naruto's hand to her breast, growing increasingly excited at his squirming body. "I'm right, aren't I? You are lusting after me," she pressed her breast harder into his hand, "You love how I feel, how I taste, how Iâ€¦touch you~" Rias brushed a finger along his _towering_ arousal, tracing a trail along his shaft, his thin pants leaving little to imagination.

"W-We can't," muttered Naruto with a steelier voice as he pulled his hand away from her breast and held her back by the shoulder. "We have to stop this; we cannot do something like this here." He looked away from Rias and made sure to not make eye contact as he pushed her back. "I-I have to go," he muttered, "W-We have a test today in class."

Rias only smirked as she stood from the ground, "You don't have to hold yourself back, Naruto-kun." She stepped closer to him, until she was pressed against him, "I want you to lose control."

"I-I'll talk to you later," he stepped away, "Sorry, but I'm almost late to school."

Rias giggled, "You shouldn't fight your desires."

"See you at school, R-Rias-chan."

Naruto had never run faster in his life than at that moment.

>It was as if nothing had happened.

'How could she act so casually?'

For the first time in a long time, Naruto couldn't focus in class. The teacher had long since handed out the test, but all he could do was stare at the blank page. Whatever knowledge he had on Advance Chemistry had all but vanished after such an exciting morning. He couldn't think straight; whenever he tried to close his eyes to think and focus, all he could see was the image of Rias lying on top of him, ravaging his lips like a hungry beast.

Naruto had experience many things in his seventeen years, but never had he ever felt so exhilarated. He had forged the ID of the local pharmacy, negotiated with thieves, burglars, drug addicts, pimps and convicts, and had saved the lives of many of them, but even then he wasn't as thrilled. His system was still flooded with adrenaline, so much so that his hands wouldn't stop shaking. All he could do was to remain silent in his desk, waiting for his nerves to calm.

But for some reason, Rias was acting as if nothing had happened.

As per usual, Rias Gremory sat very close to Naruto â€" right beside him today. Their desks were less than two feet apart. She was so close that he could smell her delightful vanilla perfume. Being in such close proximity to the most amazing woman he had ever met in his life did little to help Naruto calm down. But much to the wonderment of Naruto, Rias showed no sign of nervousness or excitement.

Naruto had at least expected her to be angry at him. After all, he had wrestled his way out of her grip in the morning and nearly shoved her away. He was so nervous that he didn't even apologize before running as fast as he could to school. Everything had been a blur for him, and he could barely remember making his way into the classroom. He could see the hormones inside his body fluctuate, so he could explain his paranoia, but he could have sworn that people were staring at him all morning, and he couldn't figure out why.

He took several deep breaths, but it did little to help, so he near jolted out of his desk when a small crumpled piece of paper landed on his desk. It was no mystery that he had come from Rias, but when he glanced at her, she remained silent.

He bit his still tingling lip as he opened the note, _"You should wipe my lipstick off your lips~"_

He blushed to the roots of his hair and immediately wiped his mouth of his sleeve, which was already very much out of character for such a meticulous person. But he couldn't help it â€" he finally figured out why people were staring at him all morning.

As the top student in school, the teacher rarely concerned himself with Naruto cheating, so the blond was safe to toss his own note to Rias. _"Why didn't you tell me?!"_

Rias nearly immediately tossed a note back, as if she already knew what he'd ask. _"I wanted to mark my territory."_

Naruto heartrate skyrocketed again as he stared down at his desk, trying to calm down. Rias' words from this morning was ringing in his ears; he could hear her voice whispering, "You are mine," in his ears and it would grow louder and sultrier each time.

He would try and fail to calm down for another hour and a half, until the bell finally rang, marking the end of the test and the beginning of lunch.

He had wondered how he should go about it, but before he could decide, Rias stood from her desk and handed in her test, not once sparing Naruto a glance. He sat for a while longer, finally calming with Rias out of the room, but almost immediately felt the need to find her. He had truly intending to ask Rias out on a date in the morning; he really did have genuine feelings for the girl who had become a very close friend in the past year. She may have scared him a little in the morning, but if she really did accept his feelings, he'd jump at the chance to date her.

So he quickly handed in his blank test, ignoring his teacher's surprised expression, and ran out of the classroom in search of Rias.

"Hey, Naruto-kun."

He didn't have to look far; she was waiting for him right outside the classroom. _'Dear God, say something. Damn it, Naruto, say something!'_ Now that he was so close to her, his heartrate started to rise again, and he was sure his face was red.

"Are you feeling alright? Your face is really red." Rias had a smile on her face the entire time, clearly teasing him.

"I-I need to speak with you, Rias-chan." Naruto finally managed to look her in the eyes, her enchanting and beautiful eyes.

Rias stepped closer to him, making some passing students whisper and glance. "Sure. What you want to talk about?"

Naruto nearly shivered at her tickling breath on his lips, "About this morningâ€¦that k-kiss."

"Oh, right," she whispered as her hands crept up to his chest, fixing his blazer, "Our first kiss. What is there to talk about?" Naruto failed to say another word as she licked her lips, which made him weak in the knees. "Do you want to have our second kiss right now?"

"N-No, that's not what I'm asking."

Suddenly, Rias stood on her tippy-toes and planted her lips onto his. If Naruto wasn't so entranced by Rias, he would have heard many people gasp in shock all around them, but he didn't hear a thing. This kiss was different than the one before. This one was sweet, tender and loving. It was just as warm, but nowhere near as sensual or wet. He loved it.

A full minute passed before Rias pulled away, gently nibbling on his lower lip as she did. "I know, but it's what I want." Naruto struggled to utter a sound, much less actually speak. "I'm sorry, Naruto-kun, but I can't have lunch with you today. Akeno and I have our weekly meeting in the Occult Research Club, so you'll have to eat without me today." She gently pecked him on the lips again before whispering, "But I'll wait by the Old School House after school today so you can pick me up for our date~"

Naruto remained motionless even after Rias walked away, leaving him and at least twenty other stunned students staring at him. It was until another few minutes passed before Rias' words registered in his mind.

"Wait, we're going on the date today?!"

>The afternoon was an utter hell for Naruto, even after three bowls of ramen for lunch. He was supposed to have class with Rias, but she didn't show for the entire afternoon. He had thought that without the hot, sexy and affectionate lady in the room, he'd be able to calm down and focus on the task at hand, but he was wrong. Whenever the thought of going on his first date with Rias his hands would start to shake and his hands would go numb, and it went on for the entire afternoon.

Finally, and inevitably, the time had come. Naruto, after fixing any crumples in his uniform, stood outside of the Old School House, waiting for his beautiful lady to be ready.

_ 'Okay, Naruto, relax. Breathe in, and breathe out. This is going to be fine. You've been planning this date for an entire week already, so relax. She's going to love itâ€¦and she's going to love you. Then she's going to kiss you, just like she did in the morning! Oh Dear God, I'm nervous! '_

"Ohayo, Naruto-san." Naruto was surprised to find someone speaking to him from the second floor window. He looked up and saw Himejima Akeno, one of Rias' closest friends and Vice-President of the Occult Research Club. "Sorry to have you wait. Buchou is ready and is coming down now."

Naruto felt his heart quicken again, "Okay. Thank you, Akeno-san."

Akeno giggled, "You're welcome."

He breathed out and stretched his shoulders, waiting for the door to open, and he didn't have to wait long. But all his memorized lines and practiced smiles evaporated from his mind the moment he laid eyes of Rias. Gone were her school clothes; they were replaced by a stunning red dress that stopped just at the knee, and the soft fabric hugged her curvaceous body like a second skin. Her long red hair was tied into a side-ponytail, letting the waterfall of red flow down her right shoulder.

"Sorry," she whispered softly as she made her way to him, "Did I make you wait long?"

He shook his head, still entranced, "You look beautiful, e-even more than usual."

"Thank you, Naruto-kun." She leaned up and plant a small kiss on his lips, "You're so sweet."

Naruto blushed, but continued. "Shall we go?"

Rias immediately linked their arms together, "Yes, we shall."

Kuoh Town was beautiful in the Spring. The Sakura trees paved the streets and was in full bloom, turning the roads into a pink paradise. They walked under the canopy, letting a pink glow fall onto them. Still arm in arm, Naruto led his date to one of his favourite restaurants. Everything was going well and was seemingly perfect, but Naruto couldn't calm his nerves.

Rias was hold his arm rather close, so it was pressed up against the side of her large breast, occasionally making it jiggle and bounce. Naruto was certain that Rias was doing it on purpose, but when he glanced over at her, she'd pretend that nothing was happening. Though through his eyes, Naruto could see that Rias was excited. Her hormones weren't as erratic as his was, but it was spiking at random times. Her adrenaline was also higher than normal, and would fluctuate every time his arm pressed against her breast.

"You know, I don't think I've ever asked you this," Rias suddenly said, breaking Naruto from his analysis. "What do you plan to do after high school?"

Naruto was a little surprise at the normal question, "University is the next step. I've already planned my current courses to be more science focused; I plan to applying for Medical School."

Rias smiled, "Of course."

"It has always been a dream of mine to be a doctor." Naruto felt a tad more relaxed at talking about something usual and casual, "It's something that I think I'm born to do."

There was a glint in Rias' eyes, "So you plan on working in a hospital?"

"Maybe for the first few years, but what I really want is to join MÃ©decins Sans FrontiÃ¨res."

"Doctors Without Borders?"

Naruto nodded with a smile, "Yeah. Japan is rich and advanced, and our people here have common access to medicine and doctors, so we're commonly fine. We do have the poor and homeless, but it is small compared to other countries. What I really want to do is to help people in need in places where they can't find any help â€" they are the people we need to help the most."

Rias hugged his arm closer, but noticed that he was no longer flinching, "Are you sure? Those places can be really dangerous, and volunteers can be targets of attacks."

"Yes, I know," Naruto shrugged, "But those are risks I am willing to take."

Rias wasn't too surprised. After learning about Naruto for the past few years, she noticed that he was annoyingly selfless in many ways. He'd go out of his way to help people, even if it would be a detriment to his own life. More than once, Rias had thought she'd have to jump in and save him from some thief or yakuza after he forced his own diagnosis on them. But as usual, somehow in some way, Naruto would always manage to talk his way through everything and end up becoming quite good friends with everyone, no matter who there were. For such a morally strong and honest person, he sure had many shady friends in odd places.

"Well, I guess being a doctor is something I could do as well."

Naruto looked over at her, "Really? You want to as well?"

Rias raised a brow at him, "Don't you remember what I said this morning?" She halted their steps and pulled him down to her height, staring straight into his eyes. "I'm going to make you mine, Naruto-kun. So you better get used to being around me, even if it means going to other countries." Naruto couldn't help but feel a little happy, "Besides, you'll need someone beside regular security to protect you. You're far too reckless when it comes to helping people; you'll die if you go on these trips alone."

He chuckled and actually leaned down to kiss Rias on the forehead, "Thank you, Rias-chan."

Rias' breath shivered as she grew flushed, and Naruto could see her estrogen levels skyrocket and her adrenaline steadily increase. "You're welcome," she whispered huskily, "Now let's continue on our date." She pulled Naruto by the hand and steadily sped up, almost running.

Naruto was surprised when Rias took a sudden turn, "Wait, the restaurant is the other way."

"We're not going to dinner now."

"What? But I made a reservation."

Rias turned back and winked at him, "You're going to break the rules this time."

Naruto had no idea Rias could run so fast, and he was having trouble keeping up. He was already out of breath, but could see that Rias was still perfectly fine. Everything was almost like a blur as she pulled him by the hand, zipping through other people and cutting through alleyways. He was familiar with the layout of their town, but after so many turns and so little oxygen and water, he had no idea where he was. He just assumed that Rias was bringing him to her desired restaurant, and breathed a sigh of relief in his quick and rapid breaths when they finally entered a building.

"Welcome! How can I help you today?" asked a cheerful hostess, Naruto assumed.

Rias quickly responded, "We'd like one room, please."

'Wait, what?!'

Before Naruto could even utter a sound, Rias paid the clerk for the entire night and dragged Naruto up the room. It was like they left modern Japan and went back in time. As soon as Rias opened the door to their room, Naruto was shocked. The room was built like a traditional Japanese house in the Edo Era. The glass windows were replaced by bamboo and paper, the marble flooring turned into tatami tiles, and there was even a small koi pond in the middle of the room. And in the middle of the room was the largest futon Naruto had ever seen.

"Today is a busy Friday, so this is the only room they have open." Rias whispered as she leaned in close to him, brushing her lips against his. "But I think this room is wonderful."

"Rias, please think about this." Naruto forced out a strong and clear voice, but his hands were shaking. "This is going way too fast!"

"I know~" She moaned, "But I can't help it."

Naruto moaned as Rias attacked his jawline and neck with kisses, "R-Rias."

"Everything about you drives me crazy. Just from you kissing me on the forehead makes me want to have you, right here, right now." Rias' eyes turned red for an instant, surprising Naruto, "You're so good. It's like you're an angel! And I want to see you," she sucked on his tender skin and left a hicky on his neck, "Moaning, screaming, drowning in pleasure. I want to see you writhing beneath me, calling out my name."

Naruto blushed to the roots of his hair, "How can you even talk like that?"

"I'm not the kind of girl who jumps into bed with someone like this," Rias whispered in his ear as she sucked on his earlobe, "There is just something about you, and only you, Naruto that makes me soâ€¦_aroused_." Naruto felt his own arousal strain against his pants as Rias threw off her vest and tore open her shirt, leaving her in a very sexy, semi-see through bra. "I've wanted to lose my virginity for a while already; my parents want me to save it for this potential marriage, but to hell with them. You're the one I'm meant to lose it with." Rias moaned as she ripped off her skirt, "I hate how controlling my parents are and I hate the man and family they are trying to marry me into. And I _love_ how good this feels right now and I am absolutely crazy about you, Naruto. So two birds with one stone, I guess."

Naruto could feel his control slipping, "S-Stop this."

Rias watched as Naruto's pupil dilate as she removed her bra and freed her bouncing breasts for his eyes to see, "Do you not want me?"

"Oh Dear God," he muttered as his knees grew weak.

"God can't help you here, my love." Rias pushed Naruto hard and made him fall onto the futon. "You're all mine now, and only mine!" Rias felt herself flood against her see-through panties as she watched Naruto's arousal strain against his pants, pushing the fabric into a tall tent. "Just give in to your lust, to your desire. I promise that from this day on, you'll be writhing in pleasure every single night."

Naruto was struggling to keep his mind sane, but the moment Rias pulled down her panties and revealed to him her most sacred and private part, dripping and flooded, all the blood left his brain and went straight to his second head. He was pushed beyond the point of reason.

Rias straddled Naruto and moaned when her soaking womanhood brushed against his leg, "Let's get you out of these clothes!" With a deft motion, Rias tore Naruto shirt away from his body and ripped open his pants, leaving him in only his boxers, his extremely strained boxers. Naruto was breathing heavily and rapidly, and Rias was nearly shaking in anticipation. With another swipe, Rias ripped his boxers away and nearly climaxed at the sight of herâ€¦rock-hard, tall, pulsating and throbbing prize.

Naruto's hips buckled as Rias spread herself on top of him, "Oh, my God!"

"From this moment on, Naruto," Rias bit her lips and lowered herself down, completely tearing through her hymen and swallowing Naruto's throbbing manhood whole with one fell motion. "You're mine!"

>Neither Naruto nor Rias had any idea how many hours have passed, but the sun had long since set. The only source of light came from the candles that lit every wall of the room, and the artificial light behind the bamboo windows. Pillows and blankets were thrown all over the room, and the futon was a dissembled mess. Parts of the walls were charred and destroyed, and candle chandelier on the ceiling was hanging to the side. Paintings on the walls were ripped and even some of the tatami tiles were cracked and split open.

Lying the in the far end in the room was the new couple, covered in sweat, a little blood, and a variety of other bodily fluids. Their bodies were tangled together, obviously still joined by their most sacred parts. By now, Naruto was on top, and was grinding his hips against Rias, shaking as he released another spurt of pleasure into her body. By now, all he could hear was Rias' moans and could only feel her incredible warmth and tightness. It had perhaps been a few hours since their lips have been apart.

But finally, Naruto fell onto his back and Rias onto his chest, both exhausted and sore.

Naruto stared up at the ceiling, his arms wrapped tightly around Rias. "How in the world did we break the chandelier?"

Rias couldn't help but laugh as she snuggled deeper into his chest, "I think I accidentally kicked my shoe up there."

He laughed along, no longer feeling nervous, but still extremely adrenaline-filled. "Dear God, I'm so sore."

"You? I'm the one who is sore!" Rias giggled and kissed his neck, which now was littered with at least a dozen hickies, which was nearly as much as she had on her neck. "I started this, but you definitely finished it."

They remained wrapped in each other's arms under a comfortable silence, letting the calming tone of each other's breathing lull them into a peaceful rest. They were a little cold, but the blankets were thrown all the way to the other side of the room, so they only snuggled closer together to keep warm. They had no idea what time it was either " their phones were somewhere hidden in the room, under ripped shirts and scattered pants.

"How are we going to leave?" wondered Naruto, breaking the silence, "Our clothes are all ripped and destroyed." Naruto was a little surprised to see Rias not responding. "Hey, is something wrong?"

Rias wrapped her legs around his waist, "Nothing, really. It's just that now that my mind is a bit clear, I'm a little embarrassed about how I acted." Naruto blinked and focused his eyes, and saw that Rias' hormonal levels were back to normal, the lowest they've been for the past day. "I-I kind of went crazy and forced myself onto you, Naruto-kun." She blushed hard, "I'm sorry." _'It was so hot! I love seeing him being so sexy and naughty!_' Inwardly, Rias was on cloud nine knowing that she'd finally corrupted Naruto.

Naruto rolled the both of them over until he was on top of her, and kissed her tenderly on the lips, "Never apologize for giving me the most amazing, incredible and unforgettable night of my entire life." Rias gave him a small smile, "You might have been a bit into it at first, but I was no less enthusiastic once we've gotten into it. I honestly think that I might have hurt you at one point."

Rias ran her fingers through his hair and shook her head, "You will never hurt me."

He kissed her again, "Never on purpose."

"But I am sorry." She wrapped her arms around his neck and pulled him close, "You're always so perfect and morally strong. I know you didn't want you first time to be in a Love Hotel, or maybe even out of wedlock. But seeing how good and righteous you are just made me want to have you more." Rias lightly kissed him, "I'm a bad woman, Naruto. Sorry for making this so sinful." _'Ahh, sinful. Just thinking about Naruto acting sinful makes me excited!'_

"I don't think it's sinful at all!" Naruto chuckled and kissed her nose. "It's not sinful for a man or woman to make love to someone they care about or have genuine feelings for." Rias looked surprised, "No, I think this was a beautiful thing. I'm absolutely crazy about you, Rias. I've had feelings for you for a long time already, and to be able to share this night with you was just perfect."

"Huh?" Rias was starting to feel a little confused. _'What do you mean it's not sinful?!'_ she screamed inwardly.

"You were also a little wrong when you said that I'm only lust after you. I don't think it's lust or can be called lust when I have genuine feelings for you."

"Not lust? Huh?"

"Nope, not at all. This isn't sinful; I think this is the best thing that has ever happened to me."

Rias moaned, "What do you mean it's not sinful!"

Naruto was surprised at her reaction, "What?"

"Damn it, Naruto! You are still so perfect and good! What the hell do you mean it's not sinful!" Rias was getting annoyed and frustrated again, "We just had steamy, hot sex! We were like animals! I attacked you and you gave me over a dozen hickies on my neck and more on my breasts! It was sinful, very sinful!"

Naruto chuckled, "You're really cute, you know?"

"No, not cute! I'm sexy, and you are, too!" Rias rolled Naruto over on his back and straddled him again, "I'll show you not sinful!"

"Do you want this to be sinful?"

"Yes!" Rias lowered herself onto her lover, "I'll corrupt you yet, Uzumaki Naruto!" _'Damn it, I'm seriously falling for this perfect idiot!'_

>THE END! XD

This is the second chapter of The Return, and I hope you all liked it! I certainly had a lot of fun writing it out. XD

As many people were asking if this story will be a single pairing, the answer is yes. Perhaps some other girls besides Rias will have feelings for Naruto, but ultimately, this will be a single pairing of Naruto x Rias. I've grown tired of harem stories; they are a pain to write and organize. Not to mention that I can put a lot more fluff into a single pairing story than I can with a harem story.

Anyway, be on the lookout for the next chapter!

Chapter 3: He's Mine!

>It was a cold morning and frost covered the town. The chill seeped through the opened window and the winds caught onto the curtains, making Naruto smile in his bed. He had always enjoyed cold mornings, and would leave his windows open to draw in the cold winds during the night. To the young man, there was nothing cozier than being wrapped in a warm and comfy blanket inside a cold and windy room. Hearing the howling winds and soft patter of rain right outside his window was peaceful and relaxing, and made him want to sleep in and enjoy the warmth.

"It's cold," whispered a soft voice.

Naruto smiled again and turned to his side, "It's great, isn't it?" He opened his arms and welcomed the slightly shivering Rias against his chest, her body snuggly pressed up against his. "It makes you appreciate the warmth you have."

Rias pinched Naruto's butt, "Shut up, Mr. Perfect. It's way too early for your speeches." Naruto smiled as he combed his fingers through Rias beautiful hair, kissing the top of her head as she drifted back to sleep. "Go back to sleep; we still have time before we have to leave."

"I'm awake already. I'll go make us some breakfast."

Rias moaned and hugged him tighter, "No, you're warm. Stay in bed."

Naruto couldn't help but return a tight hug with a soft chuckle, "Sure, whatever you want."

The young man had gotten used to his girlfriend staying over at his place, a benefit that came with living alone in the city. It was a little awkward at first, but even if they'd part ways after school, Rias would somehow sneak into his house without him knowing and cuddle with him in bed. Not to mention that their carnal activities were becoming increasingly frequent and lasting, so sleeping together for the night just made good sense.

It was true that their physical relationship had brought them closer than ever. Even without talking, Naruto learnt a lot more about Rias in two weeks than the full two years they had known each other. He learned that she was a great cook, much better than him â€" her full western breakfasts and incredible miso paste destroyed his toast and cup ramen. He found out that she took many showers throughout the day because she loved the feeling of hot water running down her body, and Naruto had found himself joining her for many of those. Most enjoyably, Naruto learned that Rias loved to cuddle in bed, and he was more than happy to indulge in.

If anything, Naruto was falling deeper and harder for Rias with each passing day.

"Ugh, now I'm awake," whined Rias as she rubbed her cheek against Naruto's chest.

Naruto chuckled and gently tilted her head by the chin, "Good morning, Rias." He leaned down and kissed her tenderly on the lips, enjoying the jolt of excitement that would rush down his spine every time their lips met.

Rias smiled into the kiss and lightly bit onto his lower lip, sucking on it as she pulled away. "Good morning to you, too."

She pushed him flat on his back and climbed on top of him, rubbing her bits and pieces all against his. Her long red hair fell around them like a veil of red silk, covering them as their lips met again and again, warm in the middle of a cold and frosty morning. She felt his gentle and warm hands slide from her thighs to her waist, caressing her soft and smooth skin as she penetrated his lips with her roaming tongue. He was so gentle and loving that Rias felt as if she was melting in his arms and nearly fell asleep under his warmth.

But before Rias could say what she wanted, Naruto stole her words from out of her mouth. "You drive me crazy, Rias." Rias barely managed a smirk before Naruto flipped their positions and pinned her on the bed, holding her arms above her head. "I have no control when I'm with you."

Rias felt Naruto's burning manhood probe her inner thighs and sent him a lustful stare, "I want you, now."

"Your wish is my command."

For the third time in one week, Naruto and Rias were late to school.

>Men, whether they be humans or otherwise had never been much of a mystery to Rias. Growing up as a Princess of the Underworld, Sister of Lucifer, Daughter and Heiress to the Gremory Family, she had suitors coming from all corners of the Underworld. One after the other, ever since she was a child, parents and children of other great houses would come to their home and present her with gifts and favor, and to Rias, everyone looked the same. It was always the same courteous smile and polite bows and curtsies. Everything was pretentious and everyone had ulterior motives; there was nothing genuine with the rich and powerful, with some rare exceptions.

Beside her father and brother, and the rest of her family, Rias never imagined that another good and genuine man would be good and genuine to her. That was until she met and fell for the most lovable idiot known to man, Uzumaki Naruto.

Rias sat in her desk in the Old School House and threw her head back against her chair, _'Since when do I fall for someone so easily and quickly? Damn it, I already miss him.'_

"Buchou? Buchou, did you hear me?"

Rias focused when she heard her newest pawn speak to her, "What is it, Issei?"

"Um, I'm finished with delivering the flyers," muttered the man with a lecherous grin, obviously ogling her breasts.

Rias had nearly forgotten about Issei recently. She had noticed the young man ever since she noticed some unwanted guests in their town giving him some unusual attention. She had ordered her Rook and Queen to keep their eyes on him, and she was indeed correct with her assumptions. There were several Fallen Angels in town and they were obviously up to no good, but ever since Naruto made her into such a lovesick girl, she had no time to think about such annoying matters.

Rias even gave Akeno, her Queen all her pawn pieces so she could implant them into Issei, the very same night she made love to Naruto for the first time.

_ 'Since when do I call it "making love"? '_

Rias nearly slammed her head onto the table, but she was once again interrupted. "Are you alright, Buchou? You are kind of spacing out again."

She managed a small smile, "It's fine, Issei. You're done for the night. Go home and get some rest."

The boy nodded dumbly, "Okay."

Rias didn't even notice Issei leave the room, or that most of her peerage had gone already. She was once again deep in thought and wonder, thinking and wondering when or where she made a mistake. So far, nothing was turning out the way she thought it would. It wasn't the worst part, though; the worst part was that she was perfectly happy with everything, beyond happy. She would be smiling day and night and everywhere in between "€" in classrooms, during lunch, afterschool, on the streets and even at home. She'd never been so happy in her entire life, and she had no idea how it happened.

She was even smiling now.

She was in her own world until someone sat down on her desk and lightly flicked her head, "Are you going to start talking now?"

Rias looked up to see her best friend and Queen. "What?"

"You've been out of it for the entire day, Rias." Akeno turned Rias' chair so they were face to face and gave her a stern stare, "So you better tell me everything. I need details."

"You already know everything, Akeno."

"No, I don't!" Akeno giggled and pulled Rias onto her feet, leading her over to the couch. "All I know is that you two slept together!" Akeno pulled Rias close by the arm, "Come on, I want to know. You never keep any secrets from me."

"It's no secret," Rias mutter with a small frown, "I'm just a little confused."

"About what?"

"This wasn't supposed to happen. I was just annoyed and frustrated at Naruto for being so good and perfect, and I wanted to prove that he's not. Everyone has flaws, so I wanted to force his out. It was a simple plan. I draw out his lust and prove that I am right, that no one is perfect." Rias was almost pouting, "It kind of worked and he was extremely attracted to me. What I didn't expect was for me to be extremely attracted to him."

Akeno giggled and bounced closer to Rias, "Really?"

"There was something wrong with me, but when I saw how erotic and wrong I was making Naruto behave, it turned me on like nothing before. I mean, I pushed him down and kissed him right in the middle of the street!" Rias blushed as her best friend laughed, "It was okay at the time; I was still right. I was being lustful, but so was he. But I couldn't stop there; I wanted to keep going and couldn't stop myself. I could have just left it there and walked away, but I didn't want it to end."

"I'll say," added Akeno as she held Rias' arm, "You were so excited and made me skip class with you to prepare for that date."

Rias smiled, "He really did put a lot of thought into our date. He planned out the various ways to get to the restaurant; he made a reservation ahead of time; he was dressed nicely and smelled good. I was enjoying myself and planned to go through with the whole thing, but then he decided to kiss me on the forehead." Akeno raised an eyebrow at her, making Rias blush. "I know it doesn't sound so exciting, but it was! After that, I lost control and basically dragged him to a Love Hotel."

"You are so bold!" Akeno laughed as Rias glared at her with a blush. "Don't stop now; what happened after?"

Rias' blush grew redder, "It was almost morning by the time we were finished, and I was happy just cuddling with him." She closed her eyes to not see Akeno's teasing smile, "I thought I had won, you know. We were like animals and we nearly destroyed the room. We had a sinful and lusty night of passion."

"It sure sounds like it!"

Rias ignored her best friend and continued, "But he went on to say how beautiful and perfect our first night was! I said it was sinful and lusty, but no! He kept babbling about how it is not sinful or even lusty if we have genuine feelings for each other. We _made love_."

Akeno laughed again, "Oh, that must have annoyed you! Then what did you do?"

"I straddled him again and we made love until the afternoon."

"Oh, my Satan! He's good!"

"I'm confused, Akeno! Stop laughing and help me!"

Akeno tried to stop and managed to mutter, "What are you confused about?"

"What do you think?! I was just trying to corrupt him; I didn't expect it to be real. But when he said that we had genuine feelings for each other, I couldn't refute. I _do_ have real feelings for him. I don't know when or how it happened, but it did!"

Akeno finally stopped laughing and listened.

"After that night, he asked if I am his girlfriend, and I was excited to say yes. He held my hand when we walked to school and I was extremely happy! Then I thought if we spend some time apart, I would return to normal, but I didn't. I couldn't even make myself stay away from him for a single day. I teleported into his home the very next night and we slept together again!" Rias rubbed her temples, "For the entire week, this went on."

"Wow, it sounds like you're actually a couple now."

"I know! I have no idea how or when it happened, but somehow, we're in a real relationship now. It's not a lustful one night stand or a sinful friends with benefits deal. We're boyfriend and girlfriend; we're lovers." Rias sighed, "But the scary part is that I'm perfectly fine with this, more than perfectly fine. I'm happy, really happy. I woke up this morning and thought how great it would be if I get to wake up in Naruto's arms every morning from now on." She blushed again, "I-I'm falling in love with him."

"Huhâ€¦" managed Akeno, still a little shocked. "Are you sure?"

Rias nodded, now calming down, feeling elated after telling her best friend. "I've never been in love before, but it's hard to imagine this to be anything else."

"Soâ€¦in the end, you didn't corrupt him at all, but he managed to get you to fall in love with him?"

Rias sighed dejectedly, "Yes."

"Amazing," whispered Akeno.

"He is just that perfect and good."

"Really?" asked Akeno, "I don't think so."

"What do you mean?"

The Queen held her chin in thought, "I think you are giving up rather hastily. I agree with you that no one is perfect, and so far, Naruto sounds far too perfect to be real. I refuse to believe that he has no lust at all, that he only slept with you because he has real feelings for you." Rias gave a small groan and rubbed her temples, "If what he says is true, then it means that if he meets another woman who is just as beautiful and attractive as you, he won't sleep with her even if she offered herself to him all because he has no feelings for her."

Rias nodded, "Yes, he really is that frustratingly annoying."

"You can't really believe that, Rias." Akeno crossed her arms, "No man or woman is free of lust, even angels have lust â€" that is why some of them fall. I'm willing to bet that if someone beautiful offers herself to Naruto, he will say the exact same things he said to you."

Much to Rias' horror, she was horrified that Naruto might be unfaithful to her. "D-Do you think that's true?"

Akeno grinned, "There really is only one way to find out."

>The small clinic operated by Naruto had since grown from the tiny storage unit a year ago. Many of the aspiring doctor's patients and friends had decided to help him in his endeavor, and saw to it that he received enough funding for his materials. Naruto never did ask where or how the money was made or come from â€" it was no mystery coming from convicts and criminals â€" he only rejoiced in the fact that the money will be used to for good and lasting cause and will save lives.

So in the middle of a desolate and crime festured district was a series of stretching storage units, all connected to each other. It was powered by several generators behind the thick forest tree line, and had enough water supply to last a full year in isolation. Most of them were cooled in order to store medication and various specimens, and the rest were sanitized and filtered cleanrooms that will be used for surgery.

At the age of seventeen, Naruto was gaining more experience than any medical school student.

But today was a peaceful and quiet day, so Naruto was relaxed.

"Hold onto your mother's hands, okay?" He spoke in the gentlest voice he could muster, and the small boy listened and turned away, holding tightly onto his mother's hands. "This won't hurt a bit." His eyes clear revealed to him the veins in the child's arm, and he skillfully injected the syringe.

"It's okay," whispered the concern mother. "Dr. Uzumaki is here to help us."

Naruto smiled, "There, all done."

After quite a few months of trying, Naruto finally managed to procure a large amount of vaccination for his patients. There were quite a few children who needed to take the shots, and the shipment came just before high season. It took nearly two weeks, but the parents all managed to gather their children discreetly and had them vaccinated.

"Did it hurt?" he asked.

The boy gave him a toothless grin, "No, it didn't!"

"Good job, buddy!" Naruto handed the boy a lollypop, "Now you won't get sick so easily."

The boy's mother bowed to Naruto, "Thank you so much, Doctor. Are you sure we can't give you anything? We do have some possessions."

"Please, ma'am, nothing at all." Naruto smiled and ruffled the boy's hair, "All I need to know is that the children are properly vaccinated."

The tears spilled from the woman's eyes, "Thank you. Thank you. God bless you, Doctor."

"Just Naruto is okay, ma'am."

The sun was setting after a long day, and Naruto stood from his desk and stretched his back. He was still a little sore from the morning, and the night before, and the few days before. His abdomen and back muscles were the most strained, but his arms and legs were also sore. His neck and chest were covered in love-bites, and he was sure that Rias had marked his back with her nails this morning. But regardless, he couldn't complain and couldn't wipe the smile from his face.

"Is Rias-neechan not here today?"

Naruto smiled at the small boy, "No, she isn't. She has some club activities and couldn't come today. But I'll tell her that you miss her, okay?"

The poor boy blushed, "Okay."

"Thank you again for everything, doctor." The woman bowed again, this time lower. "God bless you for everything you've done."

"Please, feel free to come back for anything you need."

The mother and son left and the clinic was empty, at long last. The lines of people were overwhelming to look at a few hours ago, and Naruto was still in his school uniform when he started working. Thankfully everyone was organized and tame; there were no pushing or shoving and everyone peacefully waited for their turn. But it was clear that the amount of people coming were increasing. It would seem that nearly all the homeless people in the city were coming to see him. Soon Naruto would have to increase his inventory.

Suddenly, his phone vibrated in his pocket.

"Hello?"

"Hey, Naru-chan!"

A smile instantly came onto Naruto's face after he immediately recognized that voice. "Hey, Gabriel-nee-chan!"

Naruto had always been grateful to his foster parents. They were like his true parents, and certainly treated him like their own flesh and blood. Even as an orphan, he grew up with a caring father, a loving mother, and a wonderful and fun older sister. Contrary to what some of his schoolmates believe, Naruto's family loved him and cared for him beyond measure, especially his sister. Gabriel had been Naruto's role model ever since he was a child. She taught him how to be a good person, how to care for others, how to help people, and above all, she was who taught him how to use his eyes, how to see.

"How've you been? Why haven't you called? You can't be too busy for family you know? You told me you'd call me every night if you move out! Don't you always keep your promises?"

Naruto bit his lip, "Nee-chan, I called you just a few days ago."

"Why didn't you call yesterday, or the day before, or the day before that?!"

"Well," he muttered with a soft chuckle, "I-I met a girl."

"A GIRL?! YOU SAID YOU'RE MOVING AWAY TO STUDY AND TO BECOME INDEPENDENT. YOU'RE NOT SUPPOSE TO GO GALLAVANTING WITH GIRLS!"

"Nee-chan!" cried Naruto, hoping to stop his sister, "I'm not playing around or anything. I really like this girl; this is special." He couldn't help but smile at the thought of Rias, leaning against the wall. "She's really great." He could practically see Gabriel's pout, "I'll introduce her to you the next time you're in town."

"You better! I have to approve of her; not everyone is good enough for my baby brother!"

"Nee-chan, I'm the one who doesn't deserve someone like her." Naruto chuckled, "Either way, I'm sure you'll love each other."

"Wait a minute," Naruto had a terrible feeling as his sister trailed off, "You couldn't call me at night? What in the world were you doing with that girl so late at night?!" He tried to answer, he really did, but no matter how hard he tried to think, his mind was blank. "Dear Lord, please don't tell me that you sinned!"

"D-Don't call it that, Nee-chan!"

"How could you?!" Gabriel was practically deafening Naruto's ear, "What have I taught you? The union between a man and a woman is sacred, and should never be done out of wedlock! Especially you, Naruto!" He knew it was bad when his sister didn't use her affectionate nickname for him. "No, there is no way this can continue! This girl is bad for you! I am forbidding you from seeing her!"

"Nee-chan, we didn't sin." Naruto rubbed his neck and tried to dry his sweating, "It is not a sin to make love to a woman I have genuine feelings for. We might have rushed into the whole thing, but I really like her and I think this is something serious."

"I haven't lived with you for three years and you turned into a delinquent!"

Naruto sighed, "Nee-chan, can you just be happy for me? I'm in love and I'm happy."

"No, this is wrong! Not to mention that you're too young to be doing something like this! If you don't stop this, I'll come over there myself and drag you back home." Naruto was actually worried. "Do you want that to happen?"

Before Naruto could respond, the doorbell rang. And he thanked God above " he needed an excuse to escape.

"Nee-chan, I'll call you back. There's someone at the door."

"HEY, DON'T YOU HANG UP ON ME!"

"I-I'm not hanging up on you, Nee-chan. I'll call you right back!" Naruto loved his sister more than life, but she would dote on him like he was five years old. "I love you, Nee-chan. Sorry, I'll call you right back!" Naruto ended the call and sighed against the wall, until the doorbell rang again.

"Coming." Naruto had expected one of his usual patients, so either another addict or one of the known thieves in the area, but he was surprised to see his girlfriend's best friend, a famous lady his school, Akeno Himejima. "Um, hi, Akeno-san. I'm surprised to see you here."

Akeno was still dressed in her school uniform, her tall and long ponytail falling from her back and nearly to the ground. Her face was flushed and was breathing rapidly; she was rested against the wall on her side, looking almost intoxicated.

"I need your help, Naruto-san."

Naruto's eyes widened when Akeno tripped on her way in and fell into his arms. "Are you alright, Akeno-san?"

The girl held onto his shirt collar and pulled him close. "I'm sorry to bother you so late, but Rias told me that you run a clinic here and I need your help." Naruto gently brought Akeno to the examination table and sat her down, mindful of her body. "I don't feel comfortable going to other doctors " they're all strangers. At least I know you and consider you a friend."

Naruto smiled, "I'm glad to hear that, Akeno-san. How can I help you?"

"I don't feel well," she whispered, glancing up at him, her pink lips swollen. "I-I'm a little shameful to say."

He smiled again, as kind and caring as ever. "I may not be a doctor yet, but I do respect doctor-patient confidentiality. Whatever you tell me here and now will forever be a secret between us. I will never tell another soul " that I swear."

Akeno gently reached for Naruto's hand, "I-I have some pain."

He relaxed his eyes and got ready to check, "Where?"

"Here." Whatever thought or predictions Naruto had in his mind was obliterated when Akeno placed his unsuspecting hand onto her breast, pushing it deep into her soft and warm flesh. "They've always been big and I've developed early, but they've never hurt like this." Naruto's face was a deep red and he struggled to utter a sound, especially since Akeno was moving his hand up and down, bouncing her large breast in his hand. "You can understand why I can't just go to a stranger for something like this."

"I-I don't n-need to touch to check," he managed to force out.

"I know, but I'm just trying to show you where it hurts." Naruto watched in horror as Akeno started to unbutton her blouse, leaving her large and swaying breasts covered only by a small and semi-transparent bra. "It hurts the most" she guided his fingers right under her left breast and made him bounce her breast up and down, "right here."

Naruto cleared his throat and pulled his hand away, "T-There can be several reasons." He tried to be as professional as he could and maintain eye contact with her. "You could have bruised a part on your chest, maybe during Phys. Ed or sometime during the day. The actual bruising can remain invisible for a few hours."

"Really? Can you check if I'm bruised?"

Naruto nearly jolted from his seat when Akeno suddenly took off her bra, leaving her bare breasts bouncing hypnotically in front of him, her pink nipples dancing in his eyes.

"D-Do you want some privacy?"

Akeno just stared at Naruto, "No, I want you to check them for me." She started to rub her own breasts, making them sway and bounce, really showing Naruto just how soft they were. "I feel fine here," she said while rubbed the top of breasts, "But it is a little tender here." Akeno lifted her right breasts, her heavy flesh sinking into her hand, and rubbed the underside of her breast. "Is there a bruise I can't see there?"

Naruto was averting his eyes, but finally decided to give her a professional check-up. "Let's see." He did his best to not stare and close examined her chest, skin and deeper inside, and found nothing wrong. "I don't see anything wrong. You don't seem to have any sort of external marking that would indicate a bruising."

"I won't have any lumps, right?" Akeno looked scared, "I heard that some women have lumps in their breasts and it's really bad!"

Naruto scanned her with his eyes and found nothing, "I wouldn't worry, Akeno-san. I can't see anything."

"How can you be sure with just looking?" She grabbed his hand and shoved it against her breasts, meshing it in between. "Feel them and tell me!" She reached for his other hand and forced it onto her other breast. Now he had a hand on each of her breasts and she was making him fondle her.

He was struggling to remain calm, "There really isn't anything."

"Really? Are you sure?"

"Y-Yes."

"Really sure? I'd have peace of mind if you feel me more." Naruto felt Akeno's nipples harden against his palm and her face grow increasingly flushed, not to mention the rise of estrogen in her body.

"Yes, you're really f-fine."

Akeno smiled and finally released his hands. "Oh, that's good news."

"I-If you would please dress, I will write you a prescription for some painkillers."

But before Naruto could leave the room, Akeno grabbed hold of his wrist, "Wait, you still haven't explained why I'm hurting." He knew his face was red, but he was struggling to find a reason for her pain. "You know I've heard that some women going through puberty will experience pain in their growing areas because of their changing hormonal levels. Maybe I have too much of something in my system?"

"N-No, I don't think that's it." Naruto tried and failed to pull away, "Some painkillers should be good for now."

"No, I really think that I have hormonal imbalance!" Akeno was much stronger than Naruto had expected and pulled him down, nearly making fall onto her. He stopped himself, but his face was dangerously close to her breasts. "I know that reaching orgasm can help release some hormones and stress. Can you please help me with that?"

Naruto was shocked, "What are you saying?!"

"Don't act naïve! Rias and I are best friends and she tells me everything!" Akeno hugged Naruto's head against her breasts, nearly pushing a nipple into his mouth. "I know you two have done it, so you have experience. I-I have no experience with men and have no boyfriend, so I need your help with this."

The young man tried to escape, but wasn't physically capable. "No, this is crazy, Akeno-san!"

"Ahh~" she moaned, "It feels good when you talk against my breasts."

"Let me go!" shouted Naruto, trying to not accidentally take Akeno's nipple in his mouth as he did. "This is highly inappropriate and is making me uncomfortable."

"I'll never tell Rias," Akeno whispered. "She'll never know. Aren't you excited? Your girlfriend's best friend is smothering your face in her breasts." She moaned again, rubbed her breasts onto his face. "I think this is exciting. I've always wanted to have an affair with someone. Keep a dirty and forbidden secret between only us. Come on! Rias said you are amazing in bed and I want to try it out myself!"

Naruto actually managed to push Akeno away enough to not be smothered, "There is no way we can do this, Akeno-san."

"Why not? She'll never know."

"That doesn't matter!" Naruto pushed away more. "I'm flattered that you want me for your partner, but I cannot accept. Rias is my girlfriend and your best friend. What you are suggesting is probably one of the worst things I can ever do to Rias, and I will never do anything to hurt her!"

Akeno sighed, "What she doesn't know won't hurt her."

"I will never betray her trust for me."

"You are too selfless; you know that?" The black haired girl let go of Naruto, making him recoil back into a wall, but before he could even think of freedom, she pinned him against the wall. "You shouldn't think of other people's feelings before your own. What man doesn't want to be with a beautiful woman? Don't you find me attractive? I don't think I'll lose to Rias."

Naruto groaned in exasperation, "You are very beautiful and attractive, Akeno-san, and any man will be lucky to have you. But that man will not be me. I haven't been with Rias for a long time and I know we are still discovering our feelings for each other, but I am absolutely crazy about her. I seriously think that I am falling in love with her. So I can tell you very clearly and surely that nothing will happen between you and me." He back away as far as possible, leaving his back pressed straight against the wall. "Please let me go and we can just let this pass."

Akeno stared at Naruto silently, not talking or moving, just looking. Gone were her sultriness and lust; they were replaced by surprise and wonder.

"I can't believe it," she finally muttered as she broke the silence. "You really are perfect, aren't you?"

"I don't know what you're talking about! Just let me go!"

Much to Naruto's horror, Akeno's lust and sultriness returned with a vengeance. She leaned closer to him and ran her leg up his thigh, her knee dangerously close to his manhood. "I can see why Rias is so enamored with you. You're too good and righteous. Girls like us just want to see you break, to corrupt you, to see you moan and writhe in pleasure." Akeno gave a low giggle as she licked her lips, "It makes me want toâ€¦punish you."

Naruto had no idea why Rias and Akeno were so strong and couldn't break free, "What are you doing?"

Akeno chuckled as she leaned further in, her lips dancing just above his. "I'd like a piece of you, too."

"THAT'S ENOUGH, AKENO!"

A blur of red came from out of nowhere and pushed Akeno away, knocking her to the other side of the room. It was a few seconds later that Naruto noticed that Rias was in the room. He instinctively shivered and quickly stood tall and tried to fix his clothes.

"Rias, this is not what it looks like!" he desperately tried to explain, "I-I told Akeno-san that I am with you and that nothing will ever happen between her and I. I tried to push away, but sh-"

Naruto was swiftly cut off when Rias pulled him by the arm and slammed her lips onto his. He was too shocked to respond to the kiss and could only fall back against the wall as his girlfriend ravished his mouth and subjugated his tongue. But suddenly, the kiss ended as abruptly as it started. Rias held Naruto against the wall as her eyes turned red, "From now on, you are mine and mine alone! I will be the only woman you will ever kiss!" She brought his hand up to her breasts and made him grab on, "These will be the only breasts you will touch!" She cupped his crotch and felt his hard shaft, "And this belongs to me! It will only ever enter my body! Your lips, arms, legs, hands, chest, penis €" all of you belongs to me!"

Naruto could only silently nod.

Akeno licked her lips with a giggle, "Buchou is such a selfish girl."

Rias hugged Naruto around his waist as she turned to glare at Akeno, "HE'S MINE!"

>The End!

Okay, this is chapter 3 of The Return! Several things have been revealed or heavily hinted at in this chapter, so I hope you all understood and liked them. **

Chronologically, this chapter takes place just a week after Issei is turned into a devil. Asia and the fallen angels will make their debut very soon, so don't worry about them. I have pretty much everything planned out already, so hopefully the next chapter can come out soon.

PLEASE LEAVE ME A REVIEW! I REALLY LOVE REVIEWS!
